Chairman's Letter

Group Captain Mark D Heffron CMgr FCMI RAF

Welcome to the new edition of Oranges & Lemons and another year in which we are able to support the Central Church of the Royal Air Force, its congregation and all serving and former serving RAF personnel. You will be pleased to know that at our last AGM members endorsed a change in our Constitution to bring us into line with the main St Clement Danes Church Trust body. It will reflect the work we do to support the church.

Thank you to all those who attended our Annual Concert last year, it was a huge success yet again. We saw the newly appointed Director of Music, Simon Over, perform with the choir and we achieved a first: the Band, organ and choir all performing together. It lifted the roof. We saw performances by musicians and choir which were inspiring, and garnered comments that indicated this was the best concert to date. I take that as a challenge for our next concert on the 24 November 2016!

Our biggest challenge this year however, is highlighting our work to current and former RAF personnel. This will be the mail drive for Friends in 2016. We have begun by establishing 'representatives' on all RAF stations and units. They will keep personnel up to date on events and we hope that will encourage new members. We are also engaged with other military charities which can reach those who used to serve. Please help us to spread the word and thank you for all your support over the years and into the future.

From the Resident Chaplain

The Rev'd David Osborn RAF BD AKC PGCE

Typically January weather as I write this; cold and clear, but hopefully by the time you read this we shall be into spring and close to Easter.

Our church has seen lots of activity over the past few months with many big services and large numbers of visitors. Even Hollywood has been here (not the baker, the real deal) and we hope to be able to tell you more about that in our next issue. The biggest news is that we have appointed Mr Simon Over as our new Director of Music, only the third director since the church was re-opened in 1958. Simon comes to us with a huge wealth of experience and we are very lucky to have him at St Clement Danes.

I do hope that you will be able to visit us over the summer months but if you are not able to then thank you for your continued support and prayers 'from a distance'. It means a lot to those who worship and work here to know that they have so much goodwill from so many people.

With best wishes for the season of Easter.

COVER STORY: RAF Halton

Group Captain Adrian Burns MSc MA BSc RAF

Royal Air Force Halton: not as old or as venerable as St Clement Danes but with a proud Royal Air Force pedigree as one of the three pillars established by Lord Trenchard to deliver the very best trained airmen (and airwomen) to the Front Line. A Station steeped in tradition, we seek to be forward-thinking as we adapt training as times change. The buildings look the same, the beech trees and Chiltern Hills that form a natural amphitheatre around it remain the same but the requirement and type of training has changed. Not better, not worse; just different!

Royal Air Force Halton has the standard set-up of a Royal Air Force Station – you recognise the design of the guardroom, the barrack blocks and so on. However, in general appearance it is more a sprawling country estate than a military base. Indeed, there is a village and canal in-between elements of the Base. Located near Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire, Halton was originally the estate of Alfred de Rothschild who inherited the estate in 1879 and loaned it to the War Office as a training ground at the outbreak of World War One. This meant that in 1916 the Station was home to over 20,000 troops many destined for the Somme. It also became a centre for training aircraft mechanics with over 14,000 trained in 1917. When Alfred died in 1918 his nephew took over the estate but sold it to the War Office shortly afterwards. Due to Halton's already recognised engineering training pedigree Lord Trenchard naturally established the RAF Apprenticeship on site whereby boys between 15 - 16 were examined and served a three-year apprenticeship.

Technical training has since moved to Royal Air Force Cosford but Halton evolved while retaining its historic focus upon excellence in training. So what is Royal Air Force Halton and what does it deliver now? Firstly, and foremost it is the gateway to the Royal Air Force for all airmen and airwomen joining the Service. Officers enter through Cranwell but almost all airmen and airwomen through Halton. The exception is Royal Air Force Regiment airmen who currently enter direct to Honington in Suffolk. However, this changes on 1 April 2016 (a fitting date for change in the Royal Air Force) and Halton will become the single gateway for all airmen and airwomen entering our Service. However, Royal Air Force Halton is also where all airmen return to for the command and leadership training upon them obtaining each and every promotion. Additionally, with specialist training on Station and home for sport responsibilities for over 17 sports, a large percentage of the Royal Air Force visits Halton each year. Conservatively, in my 2-year Command tour over a third of the Royal Air Force will pass through Halton's gates in one way or another. Morally this is a significant responsibility. How we act, how we look after people and how well we deliver Defence outputs, impacts upon how our personnel feel that the Royal Air Force values their training and hence them.

So, in considering our outputs, first and foremost my team are responsible for bringing civilians into the Service and preparing them for their professional training – militarising them in simple terms - this equates to over 2,000 individuals passing through Halton's gates for a 10 week training course in intakes of up to 120.

My team have worked hard to ensure that the student experience is a positive one and one that guarantees we, as the Service, ensure the recruits meet our standard. This is not a 'shouty' course and instead the team work to develop the people we receive – the recruiting organisation has already considered the people to have met the standard – it is our responsibility to develop them. In the last 18 months the team have increased first time pass rates to 87% with no reduction in standards. Their exceptional levels of training have been recognised by OFSTED in a recent inspection and is certainly recognised by the families during the 22 graduations a year where, with families, friends, flypasts and one of the Royal Air Force's bands, all are welcomed into the Service with due pomp and circumstance. There is not a graduation where the families do not thank my team for what they have done and commented how their son or daughter is more confident, more outgoing, taller and happier! From our perspective we remain convinced that our training is excellent but all we have done is polish what was already there – building on the bedrock that the families have given us.

Every graduation is enjoyable, but the one I love most is when the friendly ‘show of force’ flypast makes the crowd jump and then the marching troops are unable to hear the ‘eyes front’ commands, due to the noise of their friends and families. They will very quickly forget a missed drill movement but will remember for a very long time the sense of pride they had when their guests cheered for them.

I would also stress that Halton does not just welcome regulars and it is also the gateway for over 600 Reservists who complete their Phase One training at Halton. Indeed, we have worked very hard to integrate the Regulars and Reservists. It is right that we seek to inculcate a pride in the Royal Air Force into our new entrants but we also have to remember that the Royal Air Force of the 21st century is not just a Regular service. Indeed, I would argue that it never has been. As such, from Day 1 we are now trying to bring together our Regulars and Reservists. We undertake joint graduations twice a year and Reservists come back for a ‘super graduation’. It makes sense because having the Reservists experience the pomp and circumstance creates a pride and sense of selflessness – of joining something bigger than themselves - that helps them through their harder days.

Following this theme, Regular and Reservist training has also been partially merged with the last part of the Reservist course being a consolidation phase on an Exercise training area with their Regular colleagues. Here they are in tents running around with weapons and doing military things. Putting them together in such an environment and having them graduate together means that subsequently being on operations together is a natural progression and not something new as it was for many previous generations. This is normalising activity because the more the Regulars and Reserves know and trust each other the better they will work together.

As I initially commented, Royal Air Force Halton does not just undertake recruit training and the work of Airmen's Command Squadron but builds upon the previous work undertaken. We are acutely conscious that as an establishment that is predominantly about training we are one element of a pipeline. In the same way that the Recruiters have given us a product to mould during Recruit Training Squadron, when individuals come back to use on their management and leadership courses they have already proven their ability and promotion credentials; it is therefore once again for us to develop not judge. Also, it is again clear that the new generations coming through are different and hence learn differently. Consider, we have policy written by the Baby Boomers that Generation X teaches to Generation Y as the students! We need to be, and are, aware of this.

Where the instructors have done superbly is in reviewing the method of teaching with this in mind. We invest heavily in the skills sets of the instructors and their focus is not to teach people how to lead or manage but instead how to develop their own styles of leadership and management. The team works hard to ensure that all students leave knowing more about the Royal Air Force and themselves than they did and have a view in their own mind as to what works best for them.

What this means is that Airman's Command Squadron, more than with the basic recruits, varies significantly between courses because the characters and experiences of the members vary. Indeed, from the psychometric assessments of the students that they are given we have an understanding of how they are likely to behave and where their 'default' managerial or leadership-style will take them. We use this information in exercises to stretch student comfort zones and help them realise more about themselves. Unsurprisingly, as people get more experienced and come back to Halton on their Sergeant or Flight Sergeant courses, the level and type of training becomes more in-depth.

The best example of this is on Exercise Confident Command whereby the Sergeant training course has them managing individuals on a separate Corporals course. This exercise consolidates all of the theory used but has Sergeants in the headquarters briefing then managing corporals in the field; all under the watchful eyes of my commanders and instructors. The newly graduated airmen who are awaiting their Phase Two professional training are used as exercise injects and role-play anything from hungry locals, through to media or other 'injects'. This exercise enables us to see how people react to additional stressors while having the benefit of letting the newly promoted Corporals and Sergeants see for themselves the calibre of the newly graduated recruits who they will very quickly be responsible for leading and managing. It also motivates and inspires the youngsters by introducing them to the people and ranks that they aspire to be.

Gp Capt Adrian Burns

While I have focused upon some of the key outputs directly under my Command, Halton like most stations now plays host to a number of lodger units that equally contribute to front line effectiveness. We host a number of Tri-Service establishments looking after Health and Safety through to media operations through to training of trainers and regional Policing and Security organisations. This ensures that we best fill the space left when we no longer needed a site built to accommodate a Royal Air Force of 100,000 – now it is 33,500 regulars. These are huge players in their own right with 5,000 students coming through Halton's doors just in their areas. What this means and what I like is that Royal Air Force Halton is as much home to my Army, Royal Navy, Marine, Civil Service and contractor personnel as it is my Royal Air Force Regulars and Reserves. Such a Whole Force blend is the new normal and one that I for one am proud to be custodian of.

1. Prayer

Revd Legood opened the AGM with a prayer.

2. Apologies

Apologies were noted.

3. Chairman's Opening Remarks

St Clement Danes was closed during the first few months of 2015 to effect upgrades to all electrical systems throughout the church. The benefits of this work would be evident at the Friends Annual Concert. However, the closure also provided the Friends with a rare window of opportunity to provide much needed grants to the church for items that might otherwise have been difficult to install/implement. These include: carpeting and new furniture for the office areas of the church; bell hammers and overhaul of the carillon mechanisms and controls.

The arrival of a new Director of Music – Simon Over – also enabled the Friends to boost the musical programme at St Clements. In the past year grants have been made for: new robes for the Director of Music; refurbishment of the music catalogue/library; transportation costs of a grand piano on indefinite loan from RAF Music Services to the church.

A significant focus during the year was on how to increase membership of the Friends amongst serving and former RAF personnel. The sub-committee responsible, with the agreement of the main board of Friends Trustees, finalised revised literature/marketing materials and the challenge for 2016 would be to disseminate these throughout the RAF community and generate increased membership numbers.

Improvements had also been made to the Friends website.

The recommended amendments to the Friends' constitution would be dealt with later in the meeting.

4. Election of Officers and Trustees

The Chairman thanked Trustees for their service over the past year.

Gp Capt Holtby proposed and seconded the election of the following Trustees for the coming year:

Gp Capt Mark Heffron RAF - Chairman
Ven Canon Ray Pentland - President
Gp Capt Mark Day RAF
Wg Cdr Chris Hill - Membership Secretary
Sqn Ldr Sherry Jessup RAF - Joint Events Manager
Wg Cdr Tina Jessup RAF - Joint Events Manager
Mr Daniel Kettle - O&L Manager
Revd Dr Giles Legood RAF
Wg Cdr Mick Meyer
Mr Peter Neville-Lewis
Flt Lt Ian Perring RAFVR (T)
Mr Christopher Priebe - Hon Secretary
Sqn Ldr Em Rogers RAF - Hon Treasurer
Mr Roger Round
Mr John Rowling

Co-Opted

Wg Cdr Di Bentley
Revd David Osborn RAF - Resident Chaplain

The resolution was seconded by Mr Michael Collas and passed unanimously on a show of hands.

5. Minutes of Last Meeting

The minutes of the last AGM (as published in the spring 2015 edition of O&L magazine) were made available and the Chairman asked if there were any questions. There being none, approval was proposed by Mr Robin Law, seconded by Wg Cdr C J Hill and passed unanimously on a show of hands.

6. Treasurer's Report

Copies of the Receipts and Payments Account for the year to 30 June 2015 were distributed (see Treasurer's Year End Report page 20).

Receipts for the year to 30th June 2015 totalled £12,148, versus £17,882 for the previous year. Payments were £22,096, against £14,759 last year. The Treasurer detailed the various sources of inflows and outflows. The excess of expenditure over income was £9,948 (reversing a £3,122 profit last year) and the year-end bank balance was £56,767, down from £66,714 last year. The overspend resulted from the increase in grants made during the year, to take advantage of the church closure.

In response to a question on whether recommended donations for attendance of the Friends Annual Concert should be increased to ensure the event turns a profit, the Treasurer pointed out that when all revenues attributable to the concert are included, a small profit resulted. Additionally, many audience members incurred significant travel expenses to attend, so a major increase was not recommended.

Approval of the accounts was proposed by Wg Cdr C J Hill, seconded by Gp Cpt Holtby and passed unanimously on a show of hands.

7. Membership Secretary's Report

Members were urged to pay for their subscriptions to the Friends by direct debit, if possible, as the easiest means of payment from an administrative perspective.

Subscription rates are due to be reviewed in 2016. Trustees will make a recommendation on whether or not to increase rates for approval by members at next year's AGM.

It was pointed out that the subscription rates shown on page 36 of the Autumn 2015 edition of Oranges & Lemons magazine were out of date and should have read £22.00 for single members and £33.00 for joint members.

8. Amendments to the Constitution

As notified in the Autumn 2015 edition of O&L Magazine, the Council proposed a number of changes to the constitution of the Friends to modernise and bring the terminology used into line with other charities and ensure its objectives dove-tailed with those of the main St Clement Danes Trust and better reflected the support the Friends provides to the church, its congregation and RAF.

The proposed changes were summarised:

Members of the Council will in future be referred to as 'Trustees', with a Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer elected. There is no requirement for these appointments to be titled 'Honorary'.

The Objectives of the Charity are adjusted to read as follows:

The furtherance of the religious, commemorative and charitable work of St Clement Danes Church.

Supporting the relationship between St Clement Danes Church, its congregation and the RAF community.

The restoration, upkeep, improvement and adornment of the contents, fixtures & fittings of St Clement Danes Church.

Approval of the changes was proposed by Mr Michael Collas, seconded by Mr Roger Round and passed unanimously on a show of hands.

9. Any Other Business

It was announced that Mr Peter Kettle would be stepping down from the Council and as manager of O&L magazine, to be replaced by his son, Mr Daniel Kettle. Peter was thanked for his six years of service to the Friends, not only for his excellent work in respect of O&L magazine, but also for all his efforts in developing the Friends website and other projects, such as printing Christmas cards.

10. Date of Next Meeting

Thursday, 24 November 2016 at 4pm, with the concert to be held that evening at 7pm.

C. C. K. Priebe
Hon Secretary

Group Captain M. D. Heffron
Chairman

Financial Report for Year Ending June 2015

The CC16A, which records the income and expenditure categories on which we report to the Charity Commission at the end of the year, is shown below. The figures are rounded up or down to the nearest whole pound in accordance with Charity Commission guidelines and this rounding can induce errors of addition (usually of £1) within the accounts as displayed. Explanations of key areas are given in the paragraphs below.

Our total income was £12,148 (£17,882 last year) against a budgeted income of £15,400. Total donations for the year exceeded the £1,500 budget at £1,979 (£5,005 last year). Sales from Christmas cards, ties and other miscellaneous items held at the Church amounted to £974 (£1,293 last year); slightly below the £1,000 budgeted. The concert raised £2,165 (£2,405 last year) from ticket sales and £265 from contributions towards refreshments (£307 last year). Bank interest was £65 (£179 last year). Subscription income was markedly lower than the £7,500 budgeted and amounted to £5,749 (£6,908 last year). No fees were received from the main Church, as Guild contributions from weddings held (£250 last year) and £600 (£535 last year) were received from the Easter Service to offset the cost of flowers.

Expenditure for the year was £22,096 (£14,759 last year), against a start of year budget of £15,400. The main reason for this excess in expenditure was to respond to requests from the Church for grants to support the refurbishment project. These grants totalled £11,407 (£4,095 last year) against a budget of £5,100 and covered payments for new carpets, furniture and costs towards the repair of a standard. Payment for the issues of the O&L, including printing costs, postage and editor fees were just under budget at £4,864 (£4,488 last year) despite the upgrading to a full colour print for the last edition of the magazine. The Concert and Friends Service were within the budget of £3,100 at £2,472 (£3,434 last year) and other costs for the Easter Service flowers amounted to £281 (£605 last year). Bank charges for the running of the BACS system for membership direct debits amounted to £374 (£693 last year). A further £1,757 (£972 last year) of miscellaneous expenditure was incurred for the purchase of Christmas cards (£1,705) and for general refreshment purchases (£52). Expenditure is completed by printing and stationery expenses (£252 compared to £8 last year), and the AGM expenses (£188 compared to £202 last year).

At the end of the year we had exceeded our income by £9,948, resulting mainly from the Trustees decision to support the additional costs associated with the refurbishment of the Church. We ended the year with our Bank Accounts holding £56,767 (£66,714 last year).

In accordance with Charity Commission Regulations, as our income is below £25,000, we do not require an audit or Independent Examination. Your Trustees are content that the information presented herein is a true and accurate statement of the financial affairs of the Friends of Saint Clement Danes and therefore recommend that the financial statements be endorsed by the AGM without additional external scrutiny.

Therefore, if agreed by the members present, it is proposed to lodge the CC16A, as presented, with the Charity Commission.

The Long Way Home

Jack Little, Scottish Saltire Branch, ACA

Completing my training as a Navigator at No 32 ANS in Canada, I returned to the UK for further training at AFU and then OTU at Abingdon and St. Eval. From April 1943, I flew anti-submarine patrols over the Bay of Biscay from our base at St. Eval. Then, by complete contrast, I was posted to No. 158 Squadron in June 1943, this time flying Halifax aircraft I was engaged in bombing missions over Europe.

On 16 July 1943, after completing 8 operations over Germany we took off on a further mission but, on this occasion we were attacked and shot down while nearing our target at Montbeliard in France.

Fortunately, I managed to bail out of the damaged plane and was able to land by parachute without being detected by German troops. Instead, I was picked up by French people who, at great risk to themselves, proceeded to hide us from the Germans. After eight weeks in concealment it was decided the time was opportune for a move. We were guided over the border into Switzerland, where we received some interrogation to establish our identity and we were eventually released from internment. Plans were then drawn up for our hopeful return to the UK and, considering the hostilities in Europe were at their height, we realised this might be rather a difficult process. This realisation proved to be correct and our return journey took us into southern France, onto Italy, over to Africa and eventually back to the UK in August 1944.

On taking off from Lissett in July 1943, little did we realise it would take us over a year to return home. In any case, my return led to further training. In May 1945, I embarked on an Empire A.N.S. Course at Shawbury. This led to my qualification as an Instructor and I completed my RAF service in this capacity at No.5 ANS Jurby until December 1945.

News from 296 (Stoke Newington) Squadron Air Training Corps

Cdt FS Jordann Webb

This year is a milestone for the Air Training Corps as it marks 75 years since the organisations' formation in 1941 when it set out to supply pre-trained young men for the Second World War and generate an interest in aviation.

The Air Training Corps was formed from its predecessor the Air Defence Cadet Corps (ADCC) on 5 February 1941 with King George VI as Commodore-in-Chief. It was issued with a Royal Warrant setting out the Corps' Aims.

By the end of the Second World War (and in the space of only 7 years since the formation of the ADCC) almost 100,000 cadets had joined the RAF to serve their country.

Since then the Air Cadets have grown to be the leading face of the Cadet movement, and are recognised as a distinguished Organisation.

This year we celebrate three quarters of a century of giving young men (and not until the 1980's - young women) the opportunity to better themselves and provide them with new learning experiences, which help them to join the Royal Air Force and other services in the United Kingdom, if they wish to do so.

The Air cadets today are made up of 42,000 young men and women all around the United Kingdom and abroad (between the ages of 12-19). The Royal Air Force being our Sponsoring Service gives young people of today a chance to develop their insight to the RAF as well as themselves so that they can achieve their ambitions.

In December 2015 the Air Cadet organisation announced that HRH the Duchess of Cambridge took over the role of Patron of Air Cadets, from HRH Prince Phillip the Duke of Edinburgh who held the position of Air Commodore-in-Chief for an amazing 63 years. The Duchess now has the responsibility for representing the 42,000 air cadets and 15,000 adult volunteers.

The Duchess's appointment to Honorary Air Commandant of the Air Cadets is her first military-linked role. The Duke of Edinburgh was presented with a Crystal vase from the Commandant Air Cadets Air Commodore McCafferty on behalf on the Air Training Corps in Buckingham Palace.

296 (Stoke Newington) Squadron will spend a considerable amount of time this year recalling the history of the Squadron. This is important to cadets and staff, as we remain the only Squadron in the London Wing who still parades in the same building since our formation.

Looking back over the pictures, you see all the cadets (even to this day) show the lively face of the Air Training Corps. I strongly believe this to be one of the crucial factors that have made this organisation live for so long.

At 296 (Stoke Newington) Squadron we are currently planning our own 75th anniversary event which will bring cadets from many years ago back to the Squadron. It will be a call for celebration as we remember all the good that has come from being a part of the Air Cadets in whichever form that may be. We will bring past Commanding Officers to meet current Cadets and their own Cadets, whom they would not have (most likely) seen for decades.

In November last year, St Clement Danes held the Annual Friends' concert in which the Band of the Royal Air Force Regiment played music ranging from well-known pieces such as the theme from 'The Pacific' to the stunning 'Pathfinders March'.

Cadets from 296 (Stoke Newington) Squadron took pride in providing the Carpet Guard for such a prestigious occasion. Our duties that night also consisted of serving refreshments but more importantly speaking to people who all share a common interest in the Royal Air Force.

The Annual concert is always an occasion I dearly look forward to as I personally enjoy listening to music, not to mention having the luxury of watching one of the Royal Air Force Bands.

296 (Stoke Newington) Squadron looks forward to seeing you again at the Annual concert in 2016.

On behalf of Cadets and Staff of 296 (Stoke Newington) Squadron, we would like to wish you a prosperous and Happy New Year.
